I am pleased to confirm that Raahim Salman Abdul Ghaffar served as a Senior Research Assistant at The Aga Khan University Hospital in the Department of Pediatrics and Child Health from February to May 2024.

Raahim was hired as a Senior Research Assistant for the AKU Integrated Disaster Preparedness & Response Program. The objective of this program is to enhance disaster preparedness and response capabilities among healthcare workers in the province of Sindh. Raahim played an active role in developing the curriculum for the Disaster Response Training report. He also traveled to Sanghar multiple times and actively participated in teaching sessions for master trainers.

During his time with us, Raahim contributed to several ongoing research studies in the department. This included a grant application on the prevention of child sexual abuse through reproductive health education, as well as data collection and initial write up of pilot study of a quantitative research project on School health services. His adept qualitative analysis, including independent coding and theme generation, greatly enhanced our research efforts for a study on teachers' perceptions of child sexual abuse.
